

For Freedom of Imagination: Andersen and His Soviet Legacy

Professor Marina Balina

visiting Wiswell scholar from Illinois Wesleyan presents her comparative project on a well-known Western author, Hans Christian Andersen (1805-1875), in a new unknown context. For Konstantin Paustovsky (1892-1968), a Russian Soviet writer nominated for the Nobel Prize for literature in 1965, Andersen became an inspiration in his search for artistic freedom.
